About ZDMS

The Zebrafish Disease Models Society (ZDMS) is an international association dedicated to the advancement of basic and clinical research using zebrafish disease models. Officially incorporated in 2014, ZDMS is a non-profit, independent, member-led association which serves individuals actively involved in the research of zebrafish disease models by promoting knowledge sharing and collaboration. We hope to foster international relationships and diverse interactions in the zebrafish academic, clinical, and industrial research communities.

AIMS

- Promote the study, research, and use of zebrafish disease models throughout the world.
- Promote diversity among the zebrafish community.
- Act as a meeting point for academic, clinical, and industrial scientists using zebrafish disease models.
- Promote public awareness of the importance of the field and offer informed opinions on zebrafish disease models.

ABOUT ZDM17

ZDM meetings are the premier international meeting of researchers using zebrafish to provide relevant models of human disease. Our aim is to increase understanding of the mechanisms that cause human disease and to use this information to develop novel therapies. Delegates from academic, clinical and industrial environments are expected at ZDM17, gathering to report their latest findings in the fields of cancer, infection, inflammation, immunity, hematology, cardiovascular, GI, neurological and skeletal disease as well as drug discovery, and more. Scientists from Asia, Europe, North America, Australia, and New Zealand will share their expertise in advanced imaging, bioinformatics, genetics, genomics, metabolism and toxicology.
